PARIS, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Paris is preparing to receive Miss Ruth Elder and her companion, Capt. Haldeman, Capt. Goss of the Dutch tanker Barendrecht, which rescued them from the sea, to-night, sent the Associated Press the following message:

LONDON, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Paris is preparing to receive Miss Ruth Elder and her companion, Capt. Haldeman, Capt. Goss of the Dutch tanker Barendrecht, which rescued them from the sea, to-night, sent the Associated Press the following message:

LONDON, Oct. 14.—(AP)—If Ruth Elder, the rescued American flyer, reaches Horta before the Junkers plane D-1230 hops off from there an invitation will be given to join the Junkers crew and Miss Dillie, Vincennes actress, on their flight to the United States. Aviation enthusiasts, it is learned from Berlin tonight, suggest that it would make a happy climax to her plucky flight if Miss Elder were permitted to return to the United States aboard the D-1230. The suggestion meets with the approval of the backers of the D-1230 flight, but its consummation will depend in part of the formalities and also depends on the time of Miss Elder's arrival at Horta.

GRAYSON AVIATORS
MAKE MERRY ON EVE
OF THEIR SEA FLIGHT

Old Orchard, Me., Oct. 14.—(Special)—Francis Grayson and his crew will have east tomorrow morning in their amphibious airplane, The Dawn. Weather conditions are right, according to Bruce Goldsborough, ship's navigator.

There was nothing to do but wait at Old Orchard today. Mrs. Grayson has scarcely slept for the last week and the strain is beginning to tell her. She is in no condition to take off tomorrow with evident relief. At last the long period of waiting is over for her. She retired at 11 o'clock and left instructions to be called at 5.

During the afternoon Mrs. Grayson seemed on the verge of crying with the mental strain she has been under.

"If it were only I alone," she said, "but there are those two men and their wives to be considered, but I am right."

"My plane is the best plane—the most logical one for such a flight. The theory about there being a season for trans-Atlantic flying is wrong, and I will prove it wrong. I am going to be the first woman to fly across the Atlantic, and mine will be the only flight of the day. Lindbergh's to reach its destination, I will prove that woman can compete with man in his own undertakings."

Newport, R. I., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A series of verbal jousts between Judge Herbert Carpenter and Mrs. Jessie Margaret Budlong marked today's session of the trial of the suit against her for divorce brought by Milton J. Budlong of New York and Newport.

Mrs. Budlong is conducting her own case. She had occupied the witness stand all day in her own defense and when Judge Carpenter urged her to complete her testimony and allow the (Copyright: 1927, By the New York Times.) LONDON, Oct. 14.—Lady Astor's statement that modern women wears immoral clothes had produced protests from people of all classes. Addressing a meeting of women at Glasgow she said: "I was asked the other day why women should be allowed to wear immoral clothes. I think it is shocking that when we are demanding a single standard of morals with the men so many of us should go around in appalling clothes—in fashions set up by a few unfortunate women in a foreign land."

an absolute denial of every allegation made by her husband. She frequently denied flatly statements that had been made by Mr. Budlong, his counsel and his witnesses. Throughout the session there were many arguments between the witness and the judge when the latter sought to guide her along legal channels in her evidence. Once the judge declared, he was not going to permit Mrs. Budlong to have her own way any longer.

The witness described the so called "Budlong siege" in New York when she was locked up for several days in her husband's apartment and communicated with the outside world by means of messages tied to Mr. Budlong's shirts. Several times the judge asked her if she threw such messages.

"I refuse to answer," she said.

"Then you admit it, as far as this question concerned."

"I admit nothing."

At another point during Mrs. Budlong's testimony regarding the "siege" the judge said:

"It is losing my patience with you. What did you do and why did you do it in that apartment? If you're telling the truth you can easily answer."

Mrs. Budlong denied she had locked up the other women who accused her husband's attorney of locking her in. The trial will be resumed Monday.

ORAH, INSTEAD OF NORRIS, MAY LEAD RADICALS

Abandoning His Tendency to Play Lone Hand.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special]—Choice of Senator William E. Borah (Rep., Idaho) instead of Senator George Norris (Rep., Neb.) as the presidential candidate of the radical American group became a possibility today.

Senator Borah, it was indicated, has no desire to be an active candidate any more than does Senator Norris. Both senators recognize the futility of attempting to obtain the presidential nomination. If the name of either is used as a candidate it will be with a view of supplying a rallying point around which to promote various issues in which the group is primarily interested.

Senator Borah continued today to meet Senator Norris as the candidate, and others in the group launched a Borah boom.

Listening to Counsel.

Conferences of radical Republican senators during the last week have indicated that they will be glad to follow the lead of Senator Norris and that he is willing to do the leading. In the past the Idaho senator has usually stood as a lone hand, and while on occasion he has lined up with the La Follette radical group he has just as often been found against them. That he would show a disposition to join in conferences with a view to assembling a group which will stand together on legislation and incidentally in the coming presidential campaign has created surprise.

Find Mutual Projects.

The common basis of understanding which Senator Borah apparently thinks he has found is the interest of members of the group in various western projects. Farm relief, flood relief, and dam are among the smattering which the group proposes to take to the Senate. In farm relief, however, an agreement will be possible only if differences which have existed throughout the discussion of the McNary-Haugen bill are harmonized. Senator Borah opposed the McNary-Haugen bill on the ground that the equalization provision is unconstitutional. Most of the other members of the group supported the bill. Senator Borah now thinks that a compromise bill can be agreed on and enacted at the coming session of congress.

Against Vare and Smith.

Senator Borah said today that the bill was not up on farm relief legislation. Lack of agreement among members of congress has been the cause of failure to obtain legislation in the past, he asserted.

One matter in which the group is expected to interest itself is the question of campaign expenditures. In this connection united action in opposition to the seating of Senators-elect Frank Smith of Illinois and William S. Vare of Pennsylvania is in prospect.

Senator Borah, it is understood, also contemplated attacking what he regards as other abuses within the Republican party, such as the southern delegate situation.

Democrats to Call Parley.

Democratic leaders were in conference today with Clem Shaver, chairman of the Democratic national committee. Mr. Shaver consulted with a number of members of the committee relative to plans for the meeting at which the selection of a convention city is to be made.

Mr. Shaver may announce tomorrow judges.

CONGRESS HEARD, BUT DIDN'T ACT ON REMUS STORY

Told of Charge That Dry Agent Stole Wife.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special]—Details of the sensational story which George Remus, one time Chicago lawyer and later a millionaire bootlegger, will offer as "unwritten law" justification for killing his wife in Cincinnati last week were semi-officially described today as "pure invention" devoid of all foundation.

Remus was indicted for murder by a Cincinnati grand jury today.

The alleged conspiracy between the late Mrs. Remus and Franklin L. Dodge, former prohibition agent, which Remus will charge, cost him not only $100 in whisky, $200 in diamonds and drove him finally into a murderous frenzy, was revealed in the house in March, 1926, by Representative F. H. La Guardia, congressman from New York.

Armed with Affidavits.

Armed with affidavits and certified excerpts from court records, Mr. La Guardia charged that the former dry "ace" was then actually engaged in bootlegging the liquor which had been seized by the government when Remus was sent to Atlanta as a dry law violator, and he charged that powerful influences were protecting Dodge from prosecution.

Dodge obtained the evidence which convicted Remus as the head of a nation wide bootlegging ring and, according to Mr. La Guardia, he wanted to see the secret society Mrs. Remus, who had followed him, brought to Atlanta to be near him during the two year term he was sentenced to serve. Dodge, assigned to investigate a prison scandal, soon became "very friendly" with Mrs. Remus, whom he met in the warden's office frequently and, according to Mr. La Guardia, their relationship in the warden's office was too obvious to remain hidden.

Out of this friendship grew the conspiracy, as Mr. La Guardia traced the story based on his independent investigations, he asserted, which resulted in Mrs. Remus surrendering to Dodge $250,000 in whisky certificates and valuable jewels and securities once owned by Remus and made over to his wife when he faced difficulties with the government.

Had Him Arrested.

When Remus' prison term on the conspiracy conviction had expired, Dodge, according to Mr. La Guardia, had him arrested and held for two months in the jail of the Mayfield, Ky., warehouse, where it was stored, but Remus obtained an injunction.

Included in the mass of evidence submitted by Mr. La Guardia and inserted in the Congressional Record at various times during the year were photostatic copies of the schedule of certificates and barrel numbers, agreements between Mrs. Remus and Joseph C. Ettelson, Cleveland lawyer, who stated, it is charged, for Dodge in the transfer of the certificates from Mrs. Remus and the transfer agreement between Dodge and Hinckle.

Had Him Arrested.

When Remus' prison term on the conspiracy conviction had expired, Dodge, according to Mr. La Guardia, had him arrested and held for two months in the jail of the Mayfield, Ky., warehouse, where it was stored, but Remus obtained an injunction.

There is some doubt as to whether a general ordinance of this kind, which is supposed to prescribe a permanent rule of conduct, can be so enacted as to be in force for only a limited time and then automatically cease to operate," said Mr. Ettelson in a letter to Ald. T. J. Bowler, chairman of the committee.

Explaining he had no home, Fred Seliger, 47, appeared before Judge Harry F. Hamlin on Thursday and asked to be seated in the Bridewell for the night. He remained in court yesterday, saying a night in the city jail made him change his mind. As he was the complainant against himself, the judge ruled the case should be dismissed for want of prosecution.

James J. McVicker Named to Jury Commission

James J. McVicker, steel curtain manufacturer, has been selected as a jury commissioner to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of William McCormick, it was announced yesterday. He was elected by unanimous vote of Superior and Circuit court judges.

DOUBTS LEGALITY OF 30 DAY BAN ON LOOP PARKING

A legal shadow fell across the proposed thirty day experiment of no parking in the loop yesterday when Corporation Counsel Ettelson questioned the right of the city council to pass an ordinance authorizing the test.

Senator Borah, it is understood, also complained attacking what he regards as other abuses within the Republican party, such as the southern delegate situation.

Democrats to Call Parley.

Democratic leaders were in conference today with Clem Shaver, chairman of the Democratic national committee. Mr. Shaver consulted with a number of members of the committee relative to plans for the meeting at which the selection of a convention city is to be made.

FOE AT DOOR OF PEKING; YANKEE TROOPS ON GUARD

Shansi Army Within 15 Miles of Capital.

BULLETIN.

A code message sent about midnight last night from Peking by Charles Dailey, chief of The Tribune bureau at Peking, reads: "The enemy (Shansi troops) is fifteen miles from the capital, with severe fighting forty miles from here. The United States troops have been posted at the walls of the legation quarter."

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

(Copyright 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.)

PEKING, Oct. 14.—The French St. Cyr battle tactics used by the successful Chinese forces, which seemed to have won the day last night against the Shansi pronationalists, suddenly showed their real shortcomings against Chinese strategy.

As a result the Peking and Shansi armies are fighting tonight at Chochow, less than forty miles south of the capital, with the guns plainly heard at the Peking club races, now in progress.

Wu Ching, Marshal Chang Tso-lin's spokesman, admitted serious reverses, but expressed confidence that the Shansi forces would be unable to reach Peking's walls.

Takes Chang by Surprise.

Perhaps never before has a Chinese general been so taken by surprise as was the Manchurian war lord by the advance through Men Tow Kow pass, only fourteen miles from Peking, of two infantry regiments and twelve field guns. They attacked the Hankow railway at Chochow. The fifteenth century wall of Wu ching now are the scene of a bitter struggle.

The Peking troops, who entered Chochow yesterday, were thrown out. They reattacked today, but at nightfall the Shansi forces still were in possession. Strong defenses are being erected at the famous Marco Polo bridge, nine miles southward of Peking, at which point the city's garrison is massed.

Wu Ching admitted frankly that the strategy of the Shansi fighters let the Mukden troops rapidly far south to Shihchachwang junction.

The Shansi troops then seemed to flee westward into the mountain passes, but instead they returned to the railway, between the Peking army and Peking, thus intercepting the communications. The junction remains in the hands of the Shansi forces, as well as Chentingfu, which is being besieged by Peking forces.

New Armies Rush to Fray.

Owing to the developments in the north, armies based at Peking are marching on Chochow and on two mountain passes, one near the Manchu western border and one at Men Tow Kow, through which the Shansi armies entered the Peking district.

When these Shansi troops first appeared they were mistaken for bandits, but no sooner had the Peking army seen them than they were rapidly reinforced. There are 80,000 Shansi troops in Chihli province, and an army of 20,000 in the northwest sector, where scattered bands of brigands also are playing a part in the Kuomintang strategy. Other Shansi troops are appearing at Miyun, forty-five miles northwest of Peking. Chang has sent troops to meet them.

FORMER PRIEST IS GIVEN PULPIT BY METHODISTS

Left Catholic Church to Wed Girl He Loved.

Miami, Okla., Oct. 14.—[Special.]

The Rev. James K. Boyland, Roman Catholic priest until he took his vows last May to marry, has left Miami to become pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church in Paxico, Mo. With him went his bride, formerly Miss Lois Carter McReynolds of Tulsa.

The pastor, who brought his wife to Miami after their marriage in Tulsa and earned a livelihood here by selling household brushes, was appointed to the Methodist pastorate in Paxico, Stoddard county, at the recent session of the St. Louis conference, held in Mountain Grove, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. Boyland attended the conference session.

Studies for Ministry.

After coming to Miami the ex-priest was received into the Methodist church. His wife already was a Methodist. Then he began to study for the Methodist ministry. While he was not canvassing to sell brushes he busied himself with preparation for the pulpit. He preached several times in Miami churches last summer.

His bride of five months is a young and talented violinist. Through a girl friend, an organist in the Catholic church at Duncan, Okla., which was Father Boyland's parish, she met the handsome young priest. They became friends, then lovers.

Quits Priesthood to Wed.

RECALL OF ARMY CHIEF SEEN AS OFFICIAL REBUKE

Summerall's Criticism of Housing Is Issue.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(Special) Official Washington is convinced tonight that President Coolidge summarily recalled Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, army chief of staff, to Washington as the direct result of the latter's outspoken criticism of the administration's army housing activities in his speech at San Diego, Cal., last Tuesday.

While Gen. Summerall was not mentioned by name, a defense of the administration's army housing program was made public today at the White House, together with the statement that the coming year's budget will exceed at least $3,000,000 for housing purposes.

From other official sources it was also developed that President Coolidge interrupted Gen. Summerall's inspection trip and summoned him to Washington to question him on subject matter of his California speech.

Rebuke for Davis?

It is rumored in Washington that the President, by failing to act through the regular war department channels in recalling Gen. Summerall, intended to administer a slight rebuke to Secretary of War Davis for frequent absences from the war department. Officials claim the President advised that the White House would not be displeased if high officials at the war department spent more time at their desks.

It was recalled that on Wednesday, when the President sent his message, not only Secretary Davis but Hanford McNider and Trubee Davison, his assistant secretaries, were out of the city.

If the President did not intend to remind Gen. Summerall of his displeasure at certain remarks attributed to him during his San Diego speech, army officials cannot understand why he acted so hurriedly. They are puzzled also as to why the President ignored the secretary of war in recalling his chief of staff.

Officials regard it as unlikely that the President will ever officially admit that the recall of the chief of staff

20 COPS ESCORT BODY OF PET DOG TO ITS GRAVE

The United States Air Force association, in a statement issued tonight, asserted that Gen. Summerall was recalled to Washington to prevent his presenting "some pertinent facts to the public." The other possible powers can do, the statement continues, "is to fit a nice armor plate muzzle to Gen. Summerall." The association charged that Summerall had been made chief of staff on the assumption that he would not talk and is to be censured because he did.

I. C. C. MEMBERS DEFEND DELAY IN AIR RIGHTS STUDY

Two Take Exceptions to Jackson's Charges.

Three of the four Illinois commerce commissioners responsible for blocking action on the petition of the North Western railroad for the transfer of air rights north of the Chicago river to construction of a $15,000,000 warehouse, last night took exception to the charges of Chairman David H. Jackson that this block is actuated by questionable motives. One of the members refused to state the reason for his position; another gave several explanations and the third said that the matter had not yet been seriously considered.

The air right transaction has been pending before the commission for four and a half months, and Mr. Jackson, irked at the alleged refusal of the four commissioners to take up the issue, challenged them on Thursday to state one valid reason for their post-

Keeps Views Secret.

"I have made it a policy not to disclose actions of the commissioners and advertise our views," Edward H. Wright, colored, declared. "If Mr. Jackson violated the rule of secrecy, that is no reason for me to do so."

Alexander J. Johnson was indignant that Jackson should charge his group with sinister motives.

"Jackson thinks."

"Jackson thinks," Johnson said, "that the whole city is eager for air rights, but if you go out and talk to the common lot you will find they think that it is a scheme and a graft. Jackson also thinks that it is practically compulsory for us to approve this deal because we are the state commission, thus aiding it. But I think that this law is unconstitutional, not for any legal reasons but because of common sense."

The attorney for the railroad told the commission that the attorney general gave an opinion that this deal would be legal, but that doesn't mean that the commission is bound to take that action.

New York and Chicago.

"Besides," Johnson continued, "the air rights in New York has proved valuable there that it would have the same effect in Chicago. But the conditions in the two cities are not the same. In New York they are crowded for space, while here we have a lot of room to spread out in."

"I am not in favor of this deal, but I would vote for straight sale or straight lease. The North Western attorney has explained why there can't be a straight sale, but he hasn't told me why there can't be a straight lease."

Patrick H. Moynihan said that the matter hasn't had much consideration. Inasmuch as it is desirable, he said, to have all the members present when the matter is discussed, there hasn't been any headway while Wright was absent, and that is the reason he himself was unable to appear.

The fourth member of the group, Hal W. Trovillion of Herrin, could not be located for a statement.

209 OUT OF 210 ESCAPE SERVICE ON LEWIS JURY

CRIMINAL COURT.
George Savely, burglar, sentenced to 1 year in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Stanley Klarlkowski.

Arrived at an impasse, Judge Stanley H. Klarlkowski of the Criminal Court yesterday cast about for a dramatic means to employ in obtaining a jury of twelve citizens to try Harry J. (Lefty) Lewis for the murder of Max Braverman, junk dealer.

Man after man went through the box yesterday, each seeming to jump at the chance to evade service by claiming a fixed date or other such scruples against the death penalty. They learned from the veniremen just preceding them that one of those two things would serve to excuse them, and they barely gave the examining lawyers time to get their names down before they would blurt out their supposed opinions or scruples.

100 More Are Called.

Judge Klarlkowski, ordering a new panel of 100 veniremen to appear Monday morning, indicated he would call them all together before they were introduced to the jury box. Then the judge would question the group on the subject of excusing out the unit before they start filling into the box.

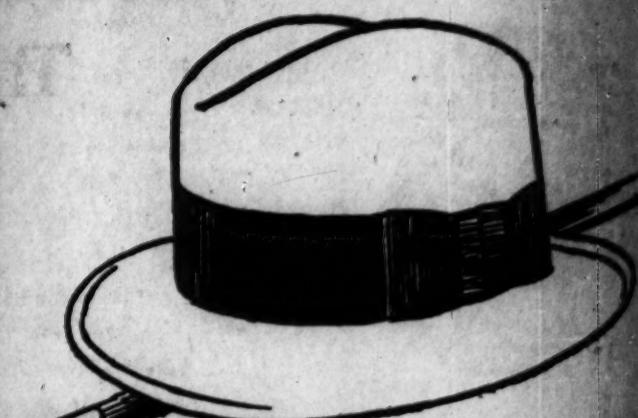

To date, a total of 210 prospective jurors have gone through the mill, and from that number only one was found acceptable for service.

State's Attorney Robert E. Crooks, appearing personally to prosecute Lewis, who is charged with having arranged for the latter's refusal to join a junk dealers' association, struggled doggedly to get a jury promptly. His assistants, Harold Levy and Emmett Byrne, joined also in the questioning, seeking to turn

YANKEE TELLS OF ESCAPE FROM BULGAR BULLETS

Describes Border Bandits'
Reign of Terror.

BY LARRY RUE.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Oct. 14.—While the recent danger of war between Jugoslavia and Bulgaria has been eliminated, the population along the frontier, and especially the Greek, is living in a reign of terror. According to Dommer Klimb, an Atlanta, Ga., youth, who has returned after making an auto tour through the regions infested by bandits [irregulars].

Mr. Klimb was with a member of the American legation staff at Belgrade, Herman Roland, and was present in the city when the Bulgarian troops perpetrated the serious bomb outrages and attempted massacres which led up to strong representations by Jugoslavia against Bulgaria and forced the latter to declare a state of siege on the frontier.

People in Terror.

"The people throughout the region south of Strumitsa, Gueyguell, Doiran, and even over the Greek border to Salomika, were terrified owing to the presence of the irregulars in the hills, but more because they were unable to trust one another," Mr. Klimb said. "So frightened were the people of Istip, Gueyguell and Doiran and other villages that even while troops patrolled outside, men, when eating in the restaurants, put their revolvers on the tables, ready for instant action."

"When I was in Salomika bandits invaded the city, trying to blow up the Serbian consulate."

Sopped by Bandits.

"Our auto was stopped by irregulars at Gueyguell, but they released us when they learned we were Americans. Half an hour later they blew up the railroad bridge. We arrived at Strumitsa a few minutes after the hotel there had been blown up. Near Doiran a bear hunter killed a Bulgarian irregular. Frequently we were fired upon from the hills, the bullets whistling by the ears. Even after we passed the Grand border, where the Greek troops constantly skirmished with the Macedonians."

Kill Two Greek Guards.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.) ATHENS, Oct. 14.—Two Greek forest guards were reported killed by Bulgarian irregulars near Sorovitz. Greek authorities, fearing Bulgarian invasions from Thrace, are strengthening military guards. The Greek government says it has reliable information showing that the Macedonian Bulgarian committee is lined up with the Russian Third International.

$1,000,000 FUND AIM OF DRY LEAGUE FOR 1928 CAMPAIGN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—More than $1,000,000 will be spent by the Anti-Saloon league, if necessary, to prevent the nomination of Gov. Al Smith of New York, Senator James A. Reed [Dem., Mo.], Gov. Albert F. Ritchie of Maryland, or any other wet candidate for the presidency in the 1928 Democratic convention.

The drive for the huge campaign fund is already under way, it became known today, having been formally launched in Missouri, where an appeal for at least $50,000 to finance the campaign for the election of dry convention delegates pledged to oppose any wet name may be offered has been broadcast.

Plans for the campaign were discussed at a secret conference of dry leaders here during the last few days in which Dr. Ernest Cherrington, national president of the league, and F. Scott McBride, its general superintendent, participated.

HINT POISON PEN LETTERS IN SUIT OF MRS. BROWN

Mrs. Frank Townley Brown's $200,000 mystery suit against Brov G. Dahlberg, wealthy manufacturer, and his wife, Mary Virginia Alexander Dahlberg of 999 Lake Shore drive, yesterday was reported in society circles to involve "poison pen" letters sent to newspapers a year ago, impugning the motives of the Dahlbergs in entertaining Princess Marie de Bourbon of Spain.

This report could not be verified, however, since Attorney Lloyd Faxon, who filed the suit, refused to divulge the motives of Mrs. Brown in sending the poison pen letters. The letters said the princess was being entertained to get publicity for Dahlberg's Florida real estate.

People in Terror.

"The people throughout the region south of Strumitsa, Gueyguell, Doiran, and even over the Greek border to Salomika, were terrified owing to the presence of the irregulars in the hills, but more because they were unable to trust one another," Mr. Klimb said. BOY AND A GIRL KILLED BY AUTOS; YEAR'S TOLL 730

Slayer in Election Day
Argument Freed by Jury
A jury in Judge Otto Kerner's Criminal court decided last night after a lengthy deliberation that the killing of Casimir Dhooghe, 29, of 1838 West Chicago avenue, by Frank Golombeck, 32, of 915 North Paulina avenue, was justified. The slaying resulted from an argument over the mayoralty race on election day in front of a polling place at 2052 West Chicago avenue. Attorney Tyrrell Richardson in behalf of Golombeck charged that his client acted in self-defense after he had been beaten by Dhooghe.

Driver Found Guilty in Collision Trial.

Two small children were killed by automobiles yesterday. Their deaths joined Cook county's 1927 motor toll to 730.

Lillian Scygiel, 8, of 1816 Cornell street, hurrying across the street to a candy store at 1371 West Chicago avenue, was fatally injured by an automobile driven by John Smirto, 15, of 3338 West Chicago avenue. The boy was held at the juvenile detention home.

Ernest Kuth, 9, of 3333 West 38th street, was killed at Archer avenue and 38th street by a motor truck operated by Fred Hagemeyer, 50, of 2903 North Kildairwick avenue.

A coroner's jury investigating the death of Frank Healy Jr., 21, of 1241 Columbia avenue, recommended that railroad officials install additional safety devices on the Baltimore and Ohio crossing at 79th and Leavitt streets where Healy was killed on Sept. 24.

George Howell, 23, of 6118 North Campbell avenue, was found guilty by a jury before Municipal Judge P. J. Murphy yesterday of a charge of assault with a deadly weapon as a result of his collision Aug. 21 at Jarvis Avenue and Sheridan road with a car driven by Harold Sullivan, attorney, 11 North La Salle street. Sentence was suspended until Monday, when Howell will be tried for failing to stop after an accident.

Evanston Children Freed from Paralysis Quarantine
Nearly 250 children under quarantine in Evanston and Glenoak following an infantile paralysis scare were released yesterday and returned to school. Dr. John W. H. Pollard, Evanston health commissioner, declared all danger of an epidemic has passed.

Shark Attacks Men!
Oct. 12.—In answer to R. E. De shark attacks men that they do. I am an old sailing master, 60 years, and have had shark attacks. I have been overboard in shark infested waters. If a person is of mind and the nerves are not too bad, it is better to be bitten by a shark than to be bitten by a tiger shark and the tiger shark is the most dangerous species of shark, the former of his speed, and the latter of his stealth. He has always been a swimmer and when attacked one has very little time to react.

LOUIS SHEPPARD,
Ward, Augusta Hospital.

KILLED.
Oct. 12.—Late in the summer personal acquaintance, a young man in the army aviation corps, was resting and sunbathing at one of the beaches in the West Indies. He was swimming in the water when he was attacked by a shark. The occurrence is related to me that the shark's first attack caused injury to the Lieutenant's side and the swimmer was able to get away, but before any one could get him to shore he had turned and struck him so hard that one leg was broken. The Lieutenant was easily taken to shore for medical help, but the shark was still in the water and was not able to find any trace of the fish and only one was found. It is very rare that swimmers see sharks, but sometimes they have been known to be close to the shore in instances like the one I mention.

GEORGE B. GRAY.

THE HEAD INSIDE.
Oct. 12.—We caught a shark. One end of the shark which had been cut open, contained the man's head. A native in Cochin had lost his left arm and had been bitten off by a shark. He did not know what was the truth or not.

WILLIAM A. FELD.

SIGNS OF INSANITY.
Oct. 10.—Scientists say to day a movie or nod the head or talk over a telephone streak of insanity. Is that what we were spared, due to Superstition and thoughtful suggestion. Who is caring what we do this year? GRAY HARE.

L. C. W.

HALLOWEEN.
Oct. 12.—Halloween tricks are again. For over thirty years have stood up nearly all night in our home from deprivations we were spared, due to Superstition and thoughtful suggestion. Who is caring what we do this year? GRAY HARE.

UTILITY INQUIRY THREAT CALLED SPYING BY U. S.

Gas Association Told of "Bureaucratic Mania."

As a parting shot at the threat of congressional inquiry into the public utility business of the country, Philip H. Gadsden of Philadelphia amplified his remarks concerning the meeting of this threat before the American Gas association, which finished its ninth annual convention yesterday at the Stevens hotel.

He pointed out that the tendency characterizing the threat of drastic investigation was to indicate of place to reorganize the whole industry under closer government scrutiny was in line with a great deal of other "snapping and spying," which seems to have developed into a sort of bureaucratic mania.

Mr. Gadsden also said that, while governmental ownership of utilities as a national project has been exploded in definite fashion, something approximating it is now stowing in the minds of statesmen as a means of accomplishing some other social purpose.

Tells Purpose of Immigrants.

Painting a background for his talk by explaining that the European stock market crisis was largely due to the importance of highly centralized governments in Europe, he continued:

"They wanted to get away from the army of government employees and their snooping and spying upon individual rights, and had been taught to look to this great country of ours, where civilization is built on the individual and not on government, and where a man is guaranteed under the Declaration of Independence full opportunity to work out his destiny by his own ability and moral character, free from unnecessary interference and regulation."

"They came from countries whose transportation facilities, public service, telephone, and telegraph are controlled by government—socialized, and sought America as a place where they could breathe the free air of individual liberty."

"What the latest comes find is that the man in twelve in this country is holding office, and, Mr. Avery stated, we must work from thirty days to six weeks for the government before we can begin to earn anything for ourselves."

Demand Aid of U. S.

"This change has been brought about by groups of business men themselves presumably opposed to government control, but willing for selfish purposes to appeal to Washington for short cuts to individual preferment. Thus today we see the government in the business, its paralyzing hand discouraging individual enterprise. We find cries from the northwest that the government should do something to hold wheat prices up. During a brief crisis an appeal was made to Washington to go into the coal industry and now some sections demand the ownership of oil."

"Whenever any group in the name of some special social remedy gets impatient of delays incident to the state of legislation or slow working out of economics, they go to Washington. And this tendency is getting us more and more entangled in highly centralized national control, and where it

RYDZEWSKI GIVEN 4 MONTHS IN JAIL ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Frank X. Rydzewski Jr., 7th ward politician and former Notre Dame football player, was sentenced to four months' imprisonment at the Sycamore county jail and fined $500, and Bert Baker, former deputy sheriff, was sentenced to six months at the Wheaton county jail and fined $400 by Federal Judge Fred L. Wharn yesterday. The two were convicted of a conspiracy in the South Chicago district.

Rydzewski and Baker were convicted two months ago by a jury before Judge Wharn on charges of transportation, sale, and possession of liquor. Joseph Chemma, former Municipal court bailiff, tried with Rydzewski and Baker, was acquitted.

The three were the first of 74 defendants named in indictments obtained three years ago to be tried. The indictment named Henry M. Walker, former Municipal court judge, Police Captain John Prendergast, and Thomas J. Coughlin, former police captain.

The charges against former Judge Walker were later dismissed.

Dr. Nathaniel Rogers, former druggist here, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Wharn to serve six months in the Du Page county jail at Wheaton on charges of illegal handling of thousands of liquor prescriptions. The indictment charged that Dr. Rogers accepted a bribe from a druggist for drugists who used stolen liquor prescriptions blanks to cover shortages.

Former Assistant United States District Attorney Edwin Peiffer, who prosecuted the case, recommended leniency due to Dr. Rogers pleading guilty and aiding the government in prosecuting cases against seventy drugists involved in the case. Fines totaling $50,000 were collected from the drugists.

Mr. Gadsden in conclusion said that his advice to the utility business is to keep as far away from senators and representatives as possible in presenting the utilities' version of affairs, and go to the people with its presentation.

"That is our constitutional right and the government depends on the backfire of the sound, intelligent business opinion of America to see that this important factor in our national affairs is not throttled," he said.

W. P. McCracken, first assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, spoke yesterday before the Illuminating Engineers society at the annual meeting held on airport airways lighting, that the United States was the first in the world to demonstrate the practicability of night operation of aircraft for commercial purposes.

Tells Plans for Airways.

"During the current year the department will provide lighting for 8,391 additional miles of airways being the 4,121 miles now lighted," he said. "An out of 10,000 miles of airways, 75 per cent will be equipped for night operations."

"Difficult as it is to estimate the future growth of the aircraft industry, it is safe to predict that success will be due to the quality and quantity of aircraft and airport illumination.

It is the prediction of what the future may be it is a fact that the aircraft makers of the country today are unable to meet the demands by the public for their products."

TRUCK DRIVERS ROBBED OF $100.

Arthur Bryan, 213 South Western Avenue, driver of a butter and egg truck, was held by two men in the course of his home last night and robbed of $100, his day's collections.

FOES OF PANAMA CHIEF SEEK U. S. INTERVENTION

Fear Trouble in Campaign for Presidency.

BY GERALD MARTIN.

Copyright: 1927: By The Chicago Tribune.

PANAMA CITY, Oct. 14.—The Panama presidential campaign, just opening, promises to be the most bitter contest since the country became independent unless guarantees of intervention in case of trouble are given by the United States.

President Chiriqui urged a demonstration of welcome tonight for his supposed successor, Francisco Arias, former minister to Germany, who has returned from Europe.

Soon after the ceremony a Panamanian entered the residence of Dr. B. Porras, former president of Panama and leader of the opposition to President Chiriqui, carrying a package loaded with dynamite.

Porras was president and an equal number of times minister to Washington. He recently returned from Europe, where he was minister to London and Paris.

"Now We Are Six," by A. A. Milne.
(Dutton.)

No juvenile has been more eagerly awaited by grownups than A. A. Milne's new volume of poems. It is the first collection of verse since "When We Were Very Young" which, although it delighted thousands of children certainly, was not of the concern of adults. "Now We Are Six" has just been published. It has pictures by the same inimitable E. H. Shepard, who made "When We Were Very Young" even more joyful than it would have been without any drawings. Some of the poems are a little more adult—as why shouldn't they be, since we are six now?

There is a charming introduction by the author, who says that it is the "Er-r-r-m" of the book (which is what

Little French Girl
Author Tells How
She Writes Books

Anne Douglas Sedgwick not long ago told Esther Forbes, author of "O, Gentle Lady," how she writes. "My books," said the author of "The Little French Girl" and, last spring, of "The Old Countess," "always start with imaginary people. I usually see their faces very clearly, and the background rises to fit them. I never begin with a biographical sketch, but have the story as a whole in my mind before I begin to write."

"Usually I start with the first chapter and write straight through, although occasionally I must jump forward to grasp essential scenes that dominate the story and can't wait until their time comes. Of course, I rewrite each novel three or four times, and a book is often greatly altered before I am finally satisfied that I have done all I can possibly do with the idea."

Louis Bromfield Is Thrilled with Chicago's Power

Louis Bromfield was here this week lecturing and incidentally getting so passionately impressed with our town as to want to come here and live for a year at least. For it was in his own mid-western consciousness that made him feel so tremendously the power of Chicago, for he was born in Mansfield, Ohio, and, while we or no, our roots do have a strong influence on us. His reaction to that growing, potential beauty and strength which is Chicago was a sincere one. Those of us who live here all the time, or who come back year after year after contacts with more finished or more adult civilizations and places sometimes miss, in the feeling that the child is part of the family, its brilliant future, and even its lumbering but undeniably strong future. To some one coming up Chicago to Louis Bromfield did, spiritually able to understand it, sort of psychically in sympathy with it, Chicago must be a tremendous experience.

But we didn't talk about Chicago all the time. I was curious to know whether this young man—just past thirty—who has had a phenomenal success with his novels, was laurel wreathed with the Pulitzer prize for his third book, had just happened upon literature as a calling. He had always told me, "I always knew I would," he said. "I always wanted and besides my parents always wanted me to, so it was inevitable."

I was surprised that he had not started writing about the war, because he was in the war, and obviously he is the sort of person to whom the war was the greatest experience which life did or ever could offer them. "I did," he said. "The first novel I wrote was about the war, but I never published it. I did write a good deal about the war, and the soap home front. To some one coming up Chicago to Louis Bromfield just writing "Jinglebob," theoretically a story of the old west for boys, but actually an authentic and memorable picture of the old days for men who really want to know the truth about those days. Mr. Rollins has spent his life making a collection of cowboy Americans which he has willed to Princeton university. He is the foremost American authority on cowboy life and literature. His "The Cowboy" is a book so rich in fact and memories as to be a source book for any one who ever attempts to write a cowboy fiction.

"Jinglebob" has the same impressiveness of fact that made "The Cowboy" a reference book as well as a thriller. Mr. Rollins is extremely perturbed because in the frontispiece of the cowboy is wearing a pair of boots which are a number of years anachronistic. He didn't see the illustration because he was in a little town in Colorado and sending them to him for his o. k. would have delayed the publication by at least two weeks. "I have a notion that Bill in 'Jinglebob' was you," I said to Mr. Rollins. He confessed that Bill was, and that the book is a sort of reminiscence of his own first trip to the west as a boy.—F. B.

Philip Ashton Rollins and the charming little Mrs. Rollins had been in Chicago for a summer in the west. Every time I see Mr. Rollins, and it is not often enough even when it is two or three times a year, for he and Mrs. Rollins are two of the really nice people in the world, I can't believe that his impressive factfulness about the cowboy is the result of having been a cowboy himself. He is so different from the stage or movie cow-

When Elmer Davis portrayed a certain reverend bishop in his "Portrait of a Cleric," several hundred people wrote scandalized or admiring letters to "Harper's Magazine" in which the article appeared.

When in the "Saturday Review of Literature" he good-humoredly played the present generation of writers in an essay called "The Age of Impotence," at least a dozen novelists repented and began to lead better lives.

And when he described the life and works of William Hale Thompson in "The Portrait of an Elected Person," all Chicago bared its head and waited for the thunderbolt.

These and other salty and invigorating essays are now available in a book, which includes a consideration of such topics as the canonization of H. L. Mencken, censorship, the present state of life and liberty in Indiana, to mention only a few. "Show Window" has just been published and costs $2.50.

Reveal Franklin's Letters to Girls

"My Dear Girl," by James Madison Bister. (Doran.) Dr. Stiffer of our town has gathered together some very interesting and to me most remarkable letters of Benjamin Franklin in a volume which he calls "My Dear Girl." They were written to Miss Polly Stevenson and to the Misses Georgiana and Catherine Shipley. They are the kind of letters that an old man in the days when letter writing was much a part of polite social intercourse as dining in nowadays would write to attractive young women. Miss Stevenson won the real affection of the great man and he writes to her as he would to a beloved child.

Even to the scandalous with their noses always to the ground these letters are without reward. They are sometimes amusing, but there is nothing in them to throw any light whatever upon the character and thoughts of Benjamin Franklin, except that he was capable of a devoted affection for a girl, that he was interested in watching her mind develop, and that he didn't think that beef agreed with him. They are pleasant to read, but not important either historically or biographically. The letters to Miss Stevenson at first have a good deal of what he calls "philosophy" in them. We would call it a lukewarm interest in natural science. But later they become merely family inquiries and scrolls of news.

He also makes in these letters naive statements about the absorption of water by the human body. He is convinced that the skin does absorb water, and he cites as an example that when one goes into the sea very thirsty a few moments in the water will remove all trace of thirst. The letters to Miss Stevenson at first have a good deal of what he calls "philosophy" in them. We would call it a lukewarm interest in natural science. But later they become merely family inquiries and scrolls of news.

DENIES U. S. O.K.'S SOUNDNESS OF FOREIGN LOANS

Kellogg Scans Them for Diplomatic Snags.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Administration officials in defending today the approval by the state department of private loans sought by foreign nations in this country insisted that this government does not attempt to pass upon their soundness or assume any responsibility for them.

The attack upon the policy of giving such approval which was made yesterday by Senator Key (D., Va.), two constituents both from the White House and the state department.

It was indicated that President Coolidge has considered the desirability of abandoning the practice under which American bankers by a voluntary arrangement submit proposals for foreign loans to the state department. The President has feared, however, that if such action were taken, congress would pass a very strict regulation limiting the sale of foreign securities in the United States. He has seemed best to him, therefore, to continue for the time being the present arrangement.

Acts in Advisory Capacity.

The action of the state department, it was pointed out on behalf of the President, is entirely advisory and consists merely in stating whether a loan would interfere with our foreign relations. This course, the President thinks, is in keeping with the provision of the constitution which entrusts the conduct of foreign relations to the executive.

State department officials, in elaborating upon the facts pointed out that it always is made clear in passing upon foreign loans that their soundness has not been inquired into.

"You, of course, appreciate," says a statement which is incorporated in letters to bankers in connection with proposals for foreign loans, "that, as pointed out the department's announcement of March 3, 1922, the department of state does not pass upon the merits of specific loans, but that its recommendations not assume any responsibility in connection with such transactions, also that no reference to the attitude of this government should be made in any prospectus or otherwise."

No Objection to Loan.

In stating that there is no objection to a particular loan the form used is that "in the light of information before it, the department of state offers no objection to this financing."

The original circular which was sent to American bankers in 1922 set forth that the department "believes that in view of the possible national interests involved it should have the opportunity of expressing the views of the writers concerned, should it appear advisable to do so, that there is or is not objection to any particular issue."

Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho), chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, expressed his accord with the position taken by Senator Glass.

"I do not want to be placed in the attitude of criticizing the state department," said Senator Borah. "It inheriting the practice and had a particular situation to deal with, but I do think it is a practice that ought to be terminated."

EDWARD HUGHES, HERO POLICEMAN, IS LAID TO REST

Policeman Edward Hughes, was buried yesterday in Mount Carmel cemetery after services at the Church of the Annunciation. Death recalled his heroic act of eleven years ago.

Henry McIntyre, colored, had barricaded himself in his home at 220 North Irving avenue after he had killed four persons, among them a police sergeant, and wounded five, including three policemen. Police had dynamited the house twice, but McIntyre was still shooting.

Policeman Hughes, off duty, happened by. He inquired what the trouble was about and stepped toward the house. Capt. Wesley Westbrook ordered him out of the danger zone. But Hughes walked into the house. McIntyre fired and the detective Hughes fired twice and killed the sergeant.

Hughes had lived with his mother at 1235 North Paulina street. His brother, Thomas Hughes, was a pitcher on the Washington team of the American League for several years.

Zwiefka Sues for $50,000, Claiming False Arrest

Suit was filed in the Superior court yesterday by Vincent S. Zwiefka, former alderman, 3004 Logan boulevard, asking $50,000 damages for false arrest and malicious prosecution. He named William Snyder, Zwiefka told Judge Peter H. Schwabe that when a friend he had stopped to collect some money from Sullivan, who was absent at the time, Snyder, he said, quarreled with him and threatened him with a gun.

The Portrait Invisible
BY JOSEPH GÖLLOMB

SUMMARY. George, owner of a New York gambling house, and two crooks, Slim and Butch, a frequent visitor, known as The Goldfish. They accuse him of being a stoolie. The Goldfish denies the charges, turns the tables by revealing he "has the 'X' on them" and dismisses them with an ultimatum they are to be always at his disposal.

In the following Monday Judge Craigh does not appear for the opening of a famous trial. His younger brother, Bruce, known as the prodigie judge, bitterly resents a treatment with a strange power over men and tricks of mind reading, begins work on the Goldfish.

Police find the murdered body of Robert Craigh in a suburban cottage, the Goldfish is said to be a young woman named Kate Randall. The Goldfish announces he wishes to live in the house in order to study the character of the suspected, missing man. After observing her books and other details of her home, Bruce urges that the Goldfish be pushed, though he has begun to fear it will involve his brother in another after a reward of $20,000 for the arrest and conviction of the murderer.

Now Slim, Bruce's faithful secretary, is poisoned in a restaurant by a young woman who meets her back to the judge's office and volunteers to substitute for her. She calls and Miss Allen.

INSTALLMENT XIX.
THE STORM.

To a watcher from the storm outside, a glimpse into the living room of the cottage must have presented a picture of somnolent comfort. That room was built with charm and sensibility, with a drowsy fire on the hearth and only lit by a library lamp, a yellow silk hood over a heliotrope glazed vase, it seemed incongruous that tragedy should ever have shown its grisly scene. In a wing chair facing the fire and the windows, the Goldfish was there. In a wing chair facing the fire and the windows, the Goldfish was there. Apparently relaxed, there was yet a peculiar suggestion of tension in his posture, as that was not the way he would relax. Indeed, gradually he stopped reading to adjust himself to some pattern he was following.

With each attempt his posture took on more and more a feminine character, as if he were playing a rôle, or rehearsing one, a rôle in imitation of a woman. And with each change in posture he looked as though he were gradually listening to something within himself.

Had Bruce been watching, he would have been reminded by this of that in Professor James' home, when The Goldfish gave an exhibition of "mind reading." Patently what the man was trying to do was to dominate the posture and expression of some other person, and by assuming these, perhaps to catch some reflection in his own consciousness of the thought or feeling of the person he was imitating.

By one in the morning the paroxysms of the storm had steadied to a maelstrom rain and fitful lightning. The Goldfish let the fire in the hearth

Geographic Society
to Award Medal to
Dr. Grosvenor Here

At a luncheon to be given Oct. 22 at the Stevens hotel, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor of Washington, president of the National Geographic society, will be presented with the Helen Culver gold medal by the Geographic Society of Chicago, in recognition of his work and his contributions to the organization, one of the largest educational and scientific bodies in the world.

Dr. Grosvenor assumed charge of the National Geographic society in 1898 when its membership comprised about 900 technical geographers. The society, which could not then afford to give him clerical assistance, occupied office space in a single room.

Since then, his distinguished services as head of the organization and as editor of the National Geographic magazine have made him internationally famous. "Now the society employs 600 persons at its spacious headquarters in Washington, including an editorial and technical staff of noted geographers, cartographer, and scientists—and its magazine goes to more than a million members, resident in every civilized country on the globe.

Dr. Grosvenor is recognized for his work in adapting the photographs, to illustrations of geographical facts, for scientific publications, the literature of geography, and for humanizing the teaching of the subject until his efforts are reflected in the universities, colleges and public schools of the country.

This is perhaps the only musical organization that never needs apologies or mental readjustments on the part of the hearer. There are no singers' voices that may be better on one occasion than another; no youthful talent that may expand into something more; no ancient talent that has tried to make itself heard. The Chicago Symphony orchestra is merely a band of experts moving under the baton of one of the world's great conductors.

Snatched back from the chaos of disbandment though it was, there was nothing particularly ceremonial about the orchestra's entering its thirty-seventh season. The audience was unbroken, and the first night was manifested the fact by increasing pattering at the entrance of the rank and file, some of the leaders, and finally Mr. Stock, but such patterning was not carried to the point of forcing Mr. Stock to make a speech. The only reference to the late unpleasances was a silent speech by President Charles H. Hamill giving the orchestra's side of the controversy, the first time that it had been made completely public.

Several changes have been made in the orchestra's personnel. Among them, Zukowsky, formerly second concertmaster to the recent John B. Borden, has gone into concertizing and his place is taken by Remo Brignoli, for the last five years concertmaster of the Philharmonic orchestra of Buenos Aires. Enrico Tramonti has taken his place and moved to California because of his health. Joseph Vito, still to be heard, will have the chair. There is a new first violin in the person of Leopold Kozlowski, who has given a first solo during Tchaikovsky's Fifth symphony; another horn player in J. Waitt, a graduate of the Curtis orchestra; viola, F. Ritter and P. Kaufman; and oboe, F. Mueller, formerly first oboe of the Rochester Symphony orchestra.

The darkness rendered all the more vivid, however, the bursts of white lighting outside; and at each recurrence there flashed up an intense gleam of a tree trunk on the curtained windows. The Goldfish, sunk in some abysm, stared at black vacuity. But nothing had rendered him wholly oblivious of the intense come-and-go of the scenes of that straight, stark tree trunk, leaping to life with a sort of fury, to hold it the most fundamental passion is for survival.

As though mere torture would be a greatful approximation of his wish to live, the Goldfish plucked the little beaded silver chain that extinguished the only light in the room, for the dying fire on the hearth scarcely made itself felt.

The darkness rendered all the more vivid, however, the bursts of white lighting outside; and at each recurrence there flashed up an intense gleam of a tree trunk on the curtained windows. But nothing had rendered him wholly oblivious of the intense come-and-go of the scenes of that straight, stark tree trunk, leaping to life with a sort of fury, to hold it the most fundamental passion is for survival.

It may have been imagination or it may have been the truth, but the orchestra seemed to play with a sort of animal symphony it never had before. At least there were things here and there, pretty well all through, that never were quite as audible as they were yesterday.

Chicago Masons to Hold
Mardi Gras Benefit Ball

Chicago Masons will hold a Mardi Gras entertainment and ball in the Coliseum on Dec. 15, 16, 17, to raise funds for the Illinois Masonic hospital.

A new wing is recently added to the institution at a cost of $400,000 and the Masonic bodies plan to raise $200,000 of this before Christmas. The entertainment will be in charge of the hospital board of trustees, of which Edward L. Johnson is chairman.

Pie Crust.

Several times of late we have received requests for pie crust recipes by return mail, because the writer was going to have company and wanted to surprise her guests. I instantly feel jocose, and think how much guests have been surprised when recipes have been tried out on them for the first time, and how heroic they have often had to be.

A pie crust is so simple as a set of ingredients: one cup of flour, one-half cup of good lard with a little salt and about five tablespoons of cold water. That is the old recipe, but the modern is more likely to contain less lard and some baking powder.

The crusts made are not alike and, as we said, the good old flaky type is made by the first recipe, and when well made is perhaps the best, delicate, but ninety-nine out of every hundred pies made have crusts considerably short of old fashioned perfection.

My own favorite direction about putting the lard into the flour—the first part of the operation—is: Flour the shortening but do not grease the flour. That may seem like a cryptic statement, but when a woman has tried many times, but a few times, she will not have any trouble in understanding what it means, especially if she has not had the idea of flouring the fat as one flours fruit and has obtained greased flour. The mixing water then is simple: one cup of flour to one-half cup of good lard with a little salt and about five tablespoons of cold water. That is the old recipe, but the modern is more likely to contain less lard and some baking powder.

Prince William Eats Pancakes and Eggs with Cliff Dwellers

BY NANCY R.

Usually a party for a prince implies a fury of fuss and feathers, of ceremony and red tape, but the breakfast given yesterday at the Cliff Dwellers for Prince William of Sweden was an informal, chatty, and pleasant affair.

For the guest of the occasion, albeit he is brother to the crown prince of Sweden and a big game hunter of international fame, is a charmingly simple gentleman, and he meant what he said when he notified the mayor that he wished to be treated as a plain citizen.

Long, lean, and smiling, he stood between Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick and Mrs. Waller Borden to greet the group of friends, both old and new, who had gathered at the Cliff Dwellers to partake of poached eggs and pancakes with him. Archaeology and art, gorillas and public speaking played their part in the conversation, but the little eddy of talk about the prince centered on the movie, Chang, which he hopes to see on this tour.

Among those who greeted him yesterday were his hosts, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Peterson, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, the Herbert Bradleys (who have hunted gorillas where he has), Mrs. Jacob Baur, Miss Harriet Monroe, Miss Alice Gerstenberg, Mrs. Archibald Freer, Mrs. William Yager, John T. McCutcheon, James Weber Linn, Horace Oakley, Dr. Max Mason, Dr. Walter Dill Scott, John H. Winterbotham, Samuel H. Arthur Aldis, George Dulan, J. Dorr Bradly, Julius Rosenwald, Edwin Balmer, Charles J. Dennis, Bo de Ribbing, acting Swedish consul, H. de Beck, acting Danish consul, Olaf Bernta, consul for Norway, Robert Harboe, Austin J. Lindstrom, Hugo Anderson, Edwin Krahn, Henry Kitchell Webster, John C. Shaffer, Curtis D. Camp, and Elmer Forsberg.

Prince William spent his time yesterday afternoon, but returns to Chicago today for his lecture this evening at the Auditorium. He will call on the mayor this morning, and after lunch will go out to the football game at Stagg's field as the guest of Dr. Mason.

And when he finished with his lecture tonight, I understand that he has an engagement that he's looking forward to with great pleasure—a game of cards with four or five seasons and, like him, enthusiastic players. Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick is giving a luncheon for him tomorrow.

Columbus, O., Oct. 14.—[Special]—Northwestern's fighting Wildcats, facing their first and possibly hardest conference game of the 1927 season, await the issue against Ohio State tomorrow as underdogs, or, as the experts are predicting, in advance predictions. It would be difficult, however, to find a more confident, though not over-confident, and determined pack of underdogs, ready to undisclo—wares before an estimated 45,000 spectators, among whom will be 1,700 student visitors from Evanston arriving on special trains in the morning.

Even Coach Dick Hanley says he is satisfied with the condition of his regulars with the exception of Tiny Lewis, and the big full back can run through sign practice on the first squad of Ohio students this afternoon. Despite his illness of the week it is probable Lewis, instead of Calderwood, will start at full back.

Hanley Is Confident.

How his men will perform after the shakeup and discipline of the last week Coach Hanley does not attempt to forecast. He has not been in Big Ten circles long enough, however, to have acquired the best brand of gloom which Wilce, Zupke, Spears, and sometimes Stagg, enjoy before games. So much for the Purple, which is defining its title of 1926, shared with Michigan.

Against these titleholders is the team picked by most critics as best qualified to dispute with Minnesota the 1927 championship. With this view Coach Wilce takes exception and asks why.

Ohio State will start practically its regular lineup. Despite a proper amount of gloom and apprehension Wilce will admit it is a pretty fair outfit, but immediately bemoans the lack of reserve strength for the forward wall.

Practice New Plays.

Northwestern stalwarts arrived at 6:30 this morning which corresponds to 6:00 Chicago time and 5:30 a.m. to the quarters at the Columbia Athletic club where breakfast was served. Then the boys were sent out for a walk to be followed by a chalk talk, but they were so weary from their early rising Coach Hanley deemed a nap for a couple hours which met with hearty approval.

Following a light meal the squad moved to the stadium and ran through signals for an hour, returning to the club. There shadow practice was held in the gymnasium with drill on new formations not used before this season.

Ohio Has Clean Slate.

The game tomorrow will be the sixth meeting of the two elevens with Northwestern yet to achieve a victory.

Back in 1913 when the present Wildcats were known as Methodists, Ohio won, 53 to 0, and repeated in the following years, 27 to 0 and 34 to 0.

In 1914, however, the first year of the season downed an unbeaten Purple eleven, 23 to 2. Paddy Driscoll scoring the points by a drop kick. Chick Harley and Pete Stinchcomb were Buckeyes then. The following year Ohio again won, 40 to 0. The game tomorrow is the first contest since 1917.

The Wildcats went through a short workout on the stadium field in the afternoon running through new plays and polishing up on the offense and defense. It was asserted that Grim and Raskowski, quarter back and tackle, respectively, responded to Trainer Mike Chambers' treatment and would start the opening lineup.

GRAND DAD WINS ARLINGTON PARK FEATURE EVENT

Ideal Weather Attracts a Crowd of 8,000.

McLaughlin Boss

MAJ. FREDERICK McLAUGHLIN yesterday was elected president of the American National Jockey Club to succeed W. J. Galligan, resigned, it was announced following a meeting of the board of directors at the executive offices of the Arlington Park race track.

The board of directors was increased from five to seven men and is now composed of Weymouth King, president; Fred McLaughlin; Joseph Cattanach, H. D. Brown, A. S. Carrithers, J. J. McFarland, and Frank J. Bruen. H. D. Brown was elected first vice president of the corporation.

BY FRENCH LANE.

With another large crowd looking on, Grand Dad, a 3 year old son of Granite-Etch D., carried the white dotted black silks of W. S. Heaton of Kentucky to victory in the first race of the day at Arlington park yesterday. He beat the favorite, Voshell, by three lengths, with Adieu, a long shot, third.

It was the first opportunity the racing public had to demonstrate that it has taken kindly to the new turf grounds on the northwest side. There were about 8,000 present, and drawn out on the lawns from beneath the trees stands by the warm sunshades and ideal weather, the crowd at times looked as large as the gathering on opening day.

All Claiming Races.

The racing card was without a feature, Grand Dad's victory coming in an event which carried the claiming clause. All the other races were for platters, but that is usually the rule on every race track on Friday. Most of the finished were close, and the favorites or second choices were winning most of the afternoon, so the large crowd was in the frame of mind and with bulging pocketbooks.

Grand Dad was a timid runner, but he didn't have his favorite course to run over. The racing strip had dried out remarkably fast with the sun beating down on it throughout the day. The track was bordering on a fast strip when the last races were decided. It will be lightning fast for today's card if the same weather prevails this morning.

Voshell fainted his many backers as Jockey Bolero rushed him to the lead when the barrier lifted. He was a couple of lengths in front when they hit the first turn, and the front runners had been winning most of the afternoon.

Grand Dad Rushes to Front.

Strengthening out in the stretch, Jockey Philpot came with a rush on Grand Dad, soon conning the claiming and romped into the lead. Philpot took the lead and drove Grand Dad into another rally, and was pulling away and clear by three full lengths as he passed the finish judges.

ARLINGTON PARK RESULTS.

FIRST RACE—Purse $1,500, claiming, 3 year olds and up, 6 furlongs: 1. Grand Dad, 103 [H. D. Brown]; 2. Adieu, 103 [John C. King]; 3. Voshell, 103 [Frank J. Bruen]; 4. Royal Guard, 103 [W. S. KAPLAN ARRIVES FOR BOUT WITH JIMMY M'LARNIN

Both Eye Title Match with Mandell.

Fight Decisions

At Boston, Mass.—Dick Honeyboy Finegan beat Jimmy Sacco (18). At Detroit, Mich.—Johnny Mello stopped Joe Aszella (31). At Norristown, Pa.—Harry Kid Brown stopped Jack Ryan (4).

Louis Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., who meets Jimmy McLarnin of California in the feature bout of Promoter Mullin's boxing show at the Coliseum on Tuesday night, arrived in Chicago yesterday. He will resume training this afternoon.

Kaplan, who was recognized as the world's featherweight champion by the New York boxing commission, had to stop out of the games because of excess weight. He is now legitimate lightweight and will try to show the fans on Tuesday night that he is a contender for the lightweight title held by Sammy Mandell.

McLarnin has been made a 6 to 5 choice over the retired 126 pound champion. Those who have seen him in action not only believe he will beat Kaplan but they intend to support him if he is picked to meet Mandell on the title.

Earl Blue, the Fargo, N. D., light heavyweight who will mingle with Rollie Saguro, the Cuban, in another ten rounder, arrived yesterday morning. Archie Bell of Brooklyn and Kid Lencho, principals in another of the ten round bouts, worked out as did My Sullivan of St. Paul and Howard McLain of Louisville, who meet in the other ten round affair.

Frankie Garcia of California and Eddie Fagan, the boxer who once was the windup of Mique Mullin's show at the White City on Monday night, will finish boxing today. Henry Cullen and Ernie Peters, local flyweights, who meet in the semi-windup, also will wind up their training.

DELANEY CUFFS RENAULT AT WILL; WINS DECISION

New York, Oct. 14.—[Special]—Jack Delaney, former world's light heavyweight king, stepped out of his class once more tonight and gave Jack Renault, the former Canadian mounted policeman, a thorough beating in ten rounds before 15,000 at the New Garden. The only satisfaction Renault won was that he knocked Delaney down for a count of two in the second round.

Delaney did not impress as some had anticipated, yet he did remarkably well considering that he spotted Renault 19½ pounds. The weights were: Renault, 196½; Delaney, 177.

LAKE FOREST AND RIPPON BATTLE TO A SCORELESS TIE

Fond du Lac, Wis., Oct. 14.—[Special]—Lake Forest and Ripon fought a 4-4 draw in the opening game of the Wisconsin-Illinois college conference for Lake Forest today. The Illinois team threatened to score three times, and lacked the necessary punch to put over a touchdown on the final play of the game. Tillie Martin of Lake Forest and Martin of Ripon were the leading ground gainers.

Grange Brings Star Backs to Meet Bears

Spaniel, Trained by Woman, Tops Dog Field Trials

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brewster, N. Y., Oct. 14.—[Special]—A little tan and white cocker spaniel named Rowelife War Dancer waltzed and danced his way to victory in the first field trial held yesterday, thereby claiming the ladies' gallery, as this hard hunting cocker was trained and handled by Mrs. A. R. Moffett of New York. Any doubts about the hunting qualities of the cockers was quickly squelched by the performances of this speedy little game seeker, weighing but twenty-four pounds, as he showed his way through his coverings and the dense thickets like a big springer, and then topped off his performance by retrieving a fat black mallard duck from water. A middle western cocker, Winnabago Prince, owned by Dr. A. C. Gifford of Oshkosh, Wis., placed second in this all age cocker event.

On Thanksgiving day two years ago Grange made his professional debut with the Bears. Last season he played in the American league, so tomorrow is the first opportunity the Bears have had to test their individual and team abilities. The player who once was called greatest of all.

Grange, however, is not a standout in the Yankees' back field. There is Tryon, leading scorer in the east in 1925; Bullet Baker of Pacific coast fame; Larry Marks of Indiana, and Bo Molenda of Michigan. All must be watched and this is the task the Bears'' front office has set for him.

Since last Sunday's game at Providence was rained out the Bears have had two weeks of rest. All of the squad are in fine condition.

Should neither team be able to score with the running or passing attacks, the drop kicking of Paddy Driscoll and Joe Sterneman will bring victory to the side with the better field. In the department of the game the Yankees have no player who can approach Driscoll's records for distance and accuracy.

The Bears' management reports an advance sale which indicates an attendance of 25,000 tomorrow, the largest pro football crowd for Chicago since Grange so successfully advertised the graduates' gridiron game.

N. Dame Alumni to Hear Navy Game Play by Play

The Notre Dame Club of Chicago will receive play by play telegraphic return of the Navy-Notre Dame football game this afternoon over a special wire direct to Venetian stadium in Chicago, beginning at 1 p. m. Chicago time, in the Louis XVI room of the Sherman hotel. Members of the U. S. Naval Academy association living in Chicago and the suburbs are invited to attend.

This illustration of steadiness and control brought loud cheers from the gallery of eastern sportsmen. The best that the middle west could do in this competition for fourth place and a certificate of merit, which were won by Grace of Avondale and Jane of Avondale respectively.

The important all age stake for both cockers and spaniels is scheduled for tomorrow. This event, paying $200 to the winner, has twenty-one entries.

trials, as both cockers and springers were required to hunt to official gunners appointed by the club.

Paul Curtis and David Wagstaff of New York City enjoyed some fast pheasant shooting during the running of the trials, and by the time they have run through their details, they have turned the running story, they have to break in again to relate that Chevigny went in for Olson and Papadopoulos for Schultz. This causes confusion and worry and up in the press corps you can hear them remark:

"That crazy Scandinavian; why doesn't he keep the Kellys in there so a man can spell the lineup."

This is the first time that the present Notre Dame team has played in these parts. Although the Navy-Harvard are very abstemious about travel for their football yokels, believing it likely to divert the minds of the students from their lessons and do more harm than good, the Notre Dame foot- ball players usually play an itinerary somewhat resembling the tour of a New York company of a Broadway show.

They may have some reason, at least, because no boy from Escanaba or Eau Claire possibly could sniff the true atmosphere of the Chesapeake oyster flats or sense the twilight gloom of the Maryland shore, where show boats still run their gang planks among the reeds and seafaring play actors still beat their tattooed bosoms and declaim "East Lynne" for the cultural uplift of the natives without touring the country.
